Reverse Innovation: How GE is Disrupting Itself

Rather than follow its historical path of developing high-end products and adapting them for emerging markets, GE is developing local technologies in these regions and then distributing them globally.

What Clients Say

- “The Life360 project vividly brought to life how media and communications technology is changing the way consumers watched the World Cup matches and consumed related content.”

– Elizabeth Ellers, EVP Corporate Research, Univision

“Our client was able to identify and correct some engineering issues in the product design that were creating confusion and problems for consumers. This was a huge benefit as they may not have identified these issues without being able to view consumers using the product through video.”

– CPG manufacturer, in-home usage study

“We wanted to be able to take a deeper look at cooking behavior and attitudes . . . That’s where Life360 was a big component to seeing what was actually going on in the home — from the role of brand, quality and family to product. The work was great and provided so much guidance and understanding to our team.”

– Chris Suwanski, Consumer Insights, Kraft Foods

World Cup Survey

- 84% of all surveys were completed
- No “fatigue factor” over time
- 61% were completed in less than 10 min
- 71% took pictures with captions

Data and Images Packaged in a Journal

Please list brand names of all food and beverages you recall purchasing today

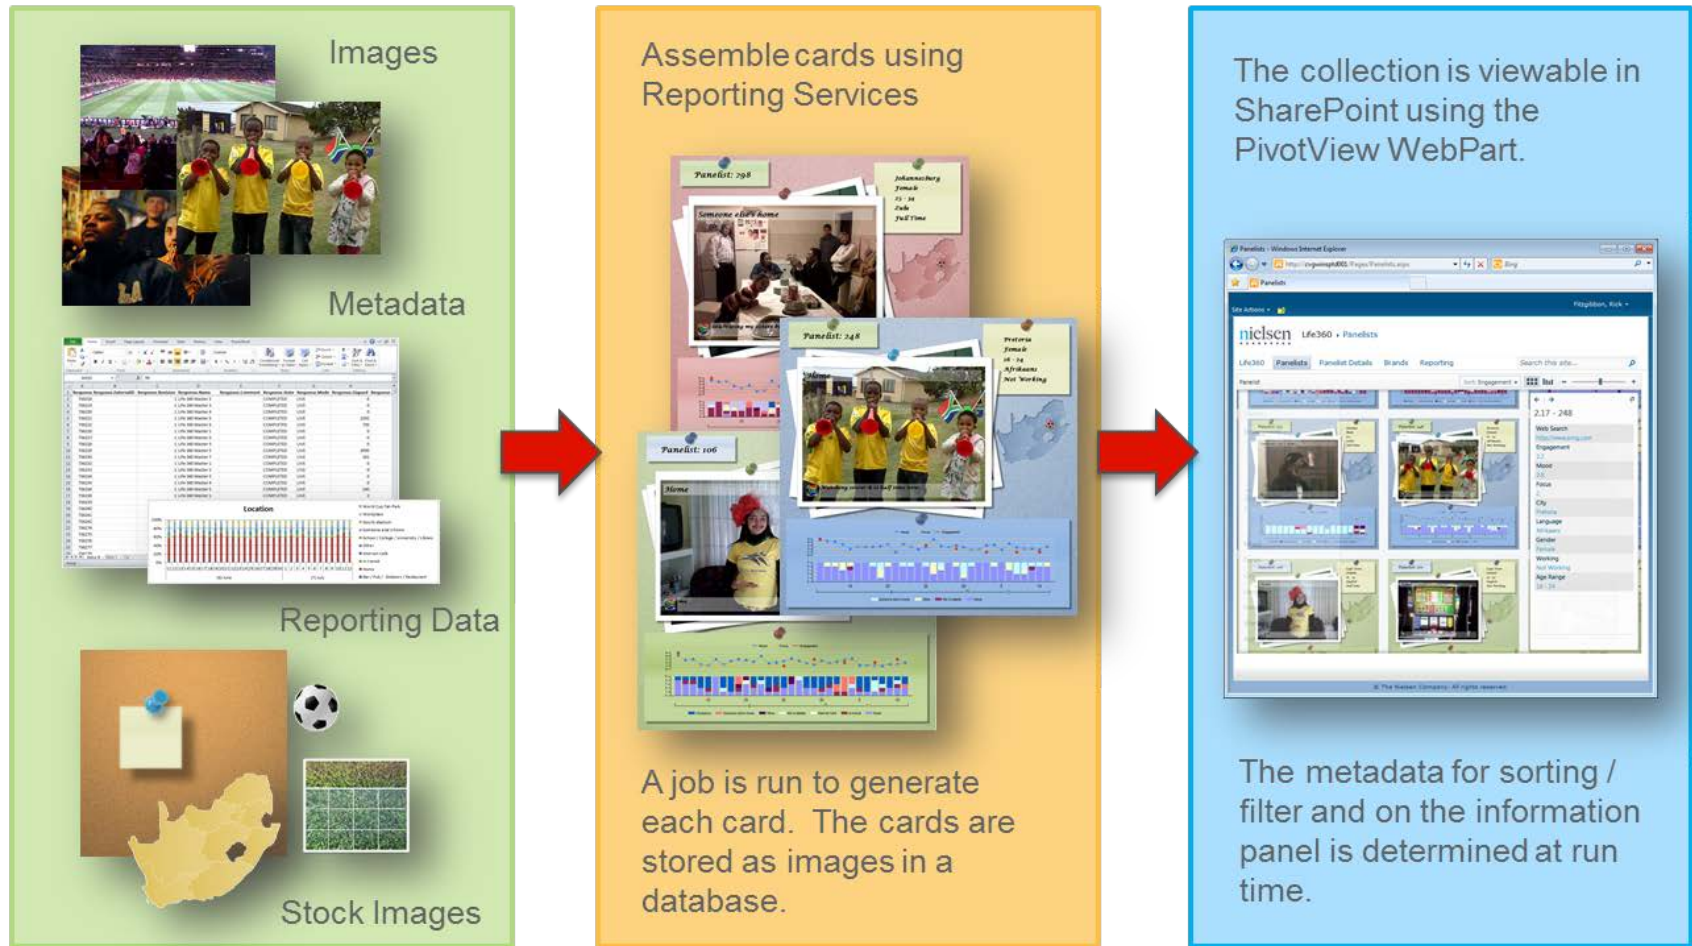

Respondents were asked to type the brands that they recalled purchasing during the day into their BlackBerry smartphones.

The highest incidence of brand recall was for Coca-Cola, Simba Chips and McDonald's. The concurrent mention of Coca-Cola and Simba Chips was also the highest.
